ABOUT PROGRAM

The Digital India revolution in the non profit sector has transformed the way discovered and choose different product and services in the NGO sector. The traditional education is not sufficient for the students to meet the present challenges of the NGO needs. NGO'S must harness the power of social media digital technologies, development leadership and management to reach donors directly with an authentic and trustworthy voice. Therefore through understanding of leadership and management tactics, best practices and techniques for this critical online presence and promotion through channels has become mandatory for managers, NGO owners and professionals improve their ROI for their grant proposal administration, people management skills and digital marketing spends.

Impact Evaluation For Development Leaders	Risk and Opportunity Management for Development Leaders	People Management and Development in Development Sector Organisations

Large number of passionate people across the country, supported by billions of dollars, are working tirelessly in the development sector to bring about social change. The impact, sustainability and scalability of the development sector work is hindered by a dearth of professional management and leadership skills appropriate for the Development Sector.

The acute shortage of professional management talent in the development sector is not owing to non-availability of good talent, but is a structural issue: There is no structured, professional course in the country that attracts and prepares such talent for Leadership and Management careers in the Development Sector. There is no equivalent of an MBA for this sector.

Addressing this issue requires the creation of an iconic institution that aims to build an entire ecosystem to facilitate the development of a cadre of professionals who are well prepared to take on Leadership and Management roles in the Development Sector and become CEOs/CXOs of these organizations in the years to come. This eco-system would include:

- Creating a unique body of knowledge which is derived from sustained and rigorous on ground research

- World class faculty and respected practitioners supported by a renowned Advisory Board, working closely to develop the discipline and prepare students for the sector

- Bright, passionate students who are committed to driving social change

- Engaged and appreciative leadership in the sector who recruit and absorb our students

- Active Alumni network which leads to continuous engagement and knowledge generation

OVERVIEW

Lead India Institute for Social Innovation and Sustainable Development (LIIID) is a pioneering institution established to develop the discipline of Development Management. The Continuing Education program at Lead India Institute for Social Innovation and Sustainable Development is designed to assist professionals from the development sector to grow by developing applicable skills of Development Management. These skills, strategies and techniques will further help professionals in the sector to adapt to the continued challenges in the development space. A key take away from the workshops is also the opportunity for continued networking beyond the classroom. Our courses are designed and facilitated by experts in their respective fields who also have knowledge and understanding of the development sector and its challenges.

The Continuing programs have been designed as intensive, short-term (2-3 days) programs taking into account the packed schedule of development professionals. The program caters to professionals in the development sector with at least 2-3 years of experience.
